PACKING FOR YOUR KILIMANJARO TREK

During your trek, you will be responsible to carry a day pack with just your essentials for the day: drinking water, rain gear, an extra layer in case you get cold, your camera and any personal items you want to have easy access to (e.g. chewing gum, hair brush, etc.). Choose a day pack that is large enough to carry your essentials and designed for durability and comfort.

The rest of your gear should be packed into a larger backpack or duffel-style bag (without wheels) to be carried by a porter on your trek support crew. Park regulations limit porters to carrying a maximum of 15 kilograms (about 33 pounds) so be very careful not to over pack for your climb. We can provide storage for any extra luggage during your trek.

Pack your items in waterproof plastic bags and also bring a rain cover for your day pack and larger bag to keep contents dry.

IMPORTANT NOTES

- This list is provided as a guideline; use your best judgment when selecting what to pack
- Choose synthetic fabrics for all clothing, including underwear, to assist with wicking sweat away from your body—do not bring any cotton clothing for the trek
- If you are buying new boots for the trek, begin breaking them in at least 30 days prior to your trek by wearing them for short periods of time every day
- Carry on all essential trekking gear in case of a luggage delay!
