Mark 9

AUTUMN

Sometimes the disciples would argue. They would fight over who got to be first in line. They would argue about whose turn it was to pack the lunch. They would fight over who got to sit next to Jesus at the table.

When Jesus overheard the disciples arguing, he told them it wasn't important who got to be first in line. It's not important where you sit at the table. What does matter? How you treat others. Jesus told the disciples the most important thing was to serve others.

Suddenly, a little kid hopped up on Jesus' knee to listen to him. Jesus smiled, and said, "See right here? If you welcome a little kid like this one in my name, you welcome me. And if you welcome me, you're really welcoming the one who sent me."
